Brief History

The OCLC was created in 1967, the same year Fred Kilgour (an American librarian) founded WorldCat, though the first catalog records were added in 1971. It is the world's largest bibliographic database. In 2003, OCLC began the "Open WorldCat" pilot program, making abbreviated records from a subset of WorldCat available to partner web sites and booksellers, to increase the accessibility of its subscribing member libraries' collections. In 2006, it became possible to search WorldCat directly at its website.

Scope and Coverage

WorldCat is a union catalog that itemizes the 2 billion collections of 10000+ libraries in 170 countries and territories that participate in the Online Computer Library Center (OCLC) global cooperative. It is operated by OCLC Online Computer Library Center, Inc. The subscribing member libraries collectively maintain WorldCat's database. It covers popular books, music CDs and videos (all of the physical items users are used to getting from libraries). User can also discover many new kinds of digital content, such as downloadable audio books. Users may also find article citations with links to their full text; authoritative research materials, such as documents and photos of local or historic significance; and digital versions of rare items that are not available to the public. Here resources are also available in other languages. These languages are English, French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Czech, Dutch, German, Thai, Korean, Chinese and Japanese.

Kind of Information

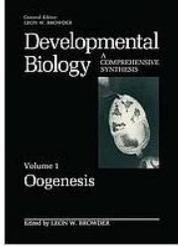

WorldCat connects the collections and services of more than 10,000 libraries worldwide. In this site user can search catalog through basic search or advance search by term, title or keyword. After search a long list appeared with some entries including the total number of search result (with all formats). For example under the search term 'Biology' following results are appeared.

The screenshot displays search results for the term 'biology' on the WorldCat website. It features three columns of results, each with a header and a list of format categories with their respective counts. The first column is titled 'Search results for 'biology'' and includes a 'Format' filter section. The second and third columns show detailed lists of format categories.
