Brief History

It was launched on November 20, 1999. The idea behind the site was initiated due to the need of a directory of online newspapers which was more useful than an individually bookmarked newspaper.

Scope and Coverage

It provides brief description on a variety of websites including the hyperlinks. Such as : Google reader, Google news archive search, Google net, Topix net, Yahoo news and blog search, Today's front pages, Daypop, News now etc. It provides news & information links. It also covers information on US politics in its blogs. It also covers information on some other topics like car insurance by budget direct, consumer credit topics etc. Both U.S. and international news are covered by this site with respective links.

Kind of Information

Mainly the information are given in two main categories :

- U.S. sates newspapers
- International newspapers

Under U.S. sates newspapers, while a single entry is clicked on that provides information about a lot of news sites. The best news sites are provided at the top with their links. Major market sites and important sites are marked as bold letters. Each of those news sites provides information on their actual location, publication detail, news coverage areas and so on. As for example, Ohio provides the following result :

Remarks

DailyEarth, the "Global Newspaper Directory" of online newspapers, is organized by U.S and country list. All U.S. newspapers include a description of content and unique coverage offered by the newspaper and the geographic area covered by each publication. News consumers utilize the Web to find a variety of opinions and perspectives. This directory fulfills this need and promotes habitual usage.
