Brief History

The Flower Expert, an online flower encyclopedia was a result of the fact that although there were some websites giving out information on flowers and some selling flowers, there was not "one place" where we could find complete information on flowers. The Flower Expert was started with the objective of providing all information on and related to Flowers at one place. It was started in June 2005 as an online flowers encyclopedia with the aim to be an authentic and reliable resource for information on flowers. As The Flower Expert grew, it started getting increasing number of inquiries about delivery of flowers. Based on this demand, in December 2007, The Flower Expert tied up with an online international flower delivery website, Pickupflowers on an experimental basis to provide the option of buying online from this site. This move received a tremendous response from the customers of the website. In 2009, the website was acquired by them. Now, in addition to providing extensive information on flowers & gardening, this site delivers flowers and gardening related stuff to more than 80 countries across the world. At this resource centre, one can shop for flowers, plants, bonsais, seeds, fertilizers, pesticides, books and videos on gardening, and more.
