| Kind of Information | In UCLA Government Information research guide, government documents are usually categorized by the level of government which produced them. Information that can be gained from all these categories is shown below. |

Federal: The national government of the United States.
State: The governments of the 50 states, including California.
Local: Any level of government below a whole state, such as counties, cities, and school districts.
International: International organizations, both global (such as the United Nations) and regional (such as the European Union).
Foreign: Individual foreign countries (which may themselves be sub-divided into national, provincial, and municipal government entities).

Each of these categories is sub-divided into so many sub-categories. The sub-categories hold nothing but information about it and links that directs to different govt. sites. Such as Federal Branch is selected from the category. This category has two sub-categories…….. About the Federal Government Collection and Federal Government: General Resources. From the Federal Government: General Resources users can go to a particular website for accessing Govt. information.  Such as…..

| Special Features | ❖ The UCLA Library is an official depository for documents produced by the US federal government, the State of California (including selected cities and counties), the United Nations, and the European Union. Depository libraries receive copies of government documents for free in exchange for providing public access to them. |
| | ❖ Open Government Data provides a platform to access open and machine readable govt. information. In addition to the library, sources like Data.gov continue to work, in partnership with the government, to make this information available to the public. |
| | ❖ Government Document Selectors helps the users to communicate with librarian (region wise) for their quarries. |
| Arrangement Pattern | Government documents are arranged category-wise. Under a category, hardly any arrangement is maintained in sub-categories. |

| Remarks | The mission of the UCLA Library's government documents is to provide access to and delivery of govt. information resources to UCLA students, faculty, and staff in support of the research and instructional mission of the university. Even other people can use it as per their need. |
