Brief History

From the time of its founding in 1831 until 1973, New York University housed its library collections in various campus locations. A major gift from Elmer Holmes Bobst and his wife, Mamdouha, enabled the university to bring its various collections together in a new library on Washington Square in 1973. Designed in red sandstone by Philip Johnson and Richard Foster, the Elmer Holmes Bobst Library is the flagship of the Division of Libraries. Since 2004, a multiphase renovation has transformed six of its twelve library floors and created a versatile Research Commons on floors 4, 5, and 6, to be expanded to 7 in early 2017.

The New York University Archives has served, since 1977, as the final repository for the historical records of New York University (NYU).

African American Communities

African American Communities presents multiple aspects of the African American community through pamphlets, newspapers and periodicals, correspondence, official records and in-depth oral histories, revealing the prevalent challenges of racism, discrimination and integration, and a unique African American culture and identity. The collection focuses predominantly on Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, New York, and towns and cities in North Carolina and includes a selection of visual material, photographs, and mass ephemera.

Alt-PressWatch

Alt-PressWatch is full text database comprised of the newspapers, magazines and journals of the alternative and independent press.

Remarks The New York University Archives serves as the final repository for the historical records of NYU. Its primary purpose is to document the history of the University and to provide source material for administrators, faculty, students, alumni, and other members of the University community, as well as scholars, authors, and other interested persons who seek to evaluate the impact of the University's activities on the history of American social, cultural, and intellectual development.
